Roedean School, Prince of Wales Terrace, Parktown

Programme

Katy Mthethwa will share the theory underpinning metacognition with specific reference to WHY we need to develop children's metacognition. Katy will move on to the 'HOW TO' of developing thinking in children and adolescents by describing a number of different thinking tools.

Thinking Maps – how a visual tool to record a cognitive process assists in metacognition.

Thinking Routines - having tools to make our thinking visible and reflect upon our learning.

Thinking Hats – empowering students to problem solve independently.

Blooms Taxonomy - using it as a tool for students to develop metacognition.

Habits of Mind - giving students strategies to think about and develop great Dispositions towards learning for life.

The second speaker Michaela Carr will share her insights and experiences of implementing these tools in the classroom and the impact that it has had on the thinking of the girls at Roedean.

Curriculum Vitae

Katy Mthethwa began her teaching career in the UK after graduating from Kingston University with a BA (Hons) in Primary Education. In 2010 she was appointed Head of Thinking Skills at St Peter's School, Johannesburg, where she implemented the use of Thinking Maps and a range of other tools to develop Higher Order Thinking across the curriculum. This led to St Peter's being accredited as a Thinking School by Exeter University in 2014. Katy is passionate about curriculum development which has a Thinking Philosophy at its core.

She is an accredited Thinking Maps trainer and a founder member of Thinking Schools South Africa (TSSA).

Michaela Carr has been a member of the Roedean Drive Team for cognitive education since 2009. As a member of staff at Roedean she was trained in Habits of Mind. She is a TSSA trainer for the junior schools in de Bono's Thinking Hats. She has also completed her training for TSSA in Thinking Maps. She is the coordinator in Cognitive Education in the Upper Junior School and she has presented numerous workshops to the Roedean staff.

Roedean (Junior School) received its accreditation as a Thinking School by the University of Exeter in 2015.

Note: There are no CPD points for this workshop
